

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A terminal information registration apparatus includes a communication module connected to a center server by Internet, and a registration module that registers management object terminal information into the center server via the communication module. Particularly, the registration module is configured to set a provisional access code issued to an authorized user into the communication module and establish a communication for registering terminal identification information of one or more electronic office terminals as the management object terminal information.